USE OF THE STREETS.

It seems the problem of congested streets is an issue at other places as well as Bryan. The following is from the Waco Times-Herald:

"A note to the editor, not meant for publication, is spread before our readers:

"Brother, why do you not take up that thirty-minute law on vehicles being permitted to occupy the streets in front of stores while shopping? It seems that a few new officers, who do not understand this law, have made several merchants very angry by ordering ladies to move their vehicles from in front of business houses before they were half through shopping. Why not send a reporter to the city commissioners and get a full report on what was really their intention when passing this thirty-minute law? My understanding was that an officer could request a person to 'move on' only when asked to do so by a merchant. No woman can do all of her shopping in a crowded store in thirty minutes. By taking up this matter in the Times-Herald you will make many friends amongst the ladies especially."

"The Times-Herald is disposed to believe that the occupancy of the street is for individual determination, provided there's no blockading. It may be competent—that doesn't seem unreasonable—for a merchant to ask that the street in front of his place be kept open for the use of his customers, a reasonable time—thirty minutes is reasonable—being allowed any vehicle. If the merchant doesn't object, the vehicle should remain all day if the owner so desires. The thing to keep in mind always is this: The person out of town coming here to trade must be accorded every possible privilege as to his team or machine. As for us town folks we have full rights as to the streets, unless it seems to the man in business that we are interfering with his trade rights."

"RILEY WEEK."

James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, whose birthday comes on October 7, is to be honored by a great demonstration in Indianapolis, his home town. He is now enjoying excellent health. The paralysis which manifested itself in his right arm a little more than a year ago is rapidly disappearing, and he says he feels as well as ever he did in his life. Every day he takes a long ride about Indianapolis and the surrounding country in his big touring car. Which is all right, only we get somewhat indignant when we get to thinking that Judd Lewis goes back and forth in a crowded street car. Come to the Cotton Palace, Judd.—Waco Times-Herald.

"Riley Week" is to be observed here and in many other cities throughout the country. It is meet that this great honor be shown our foremost poet while he is yet living.

When you fall to get your mail tomorrow, just think how those old post-office boys are rearing back and enjoying their Sunday freedom, and the disappointment will not be such a jar to you.

In a recent California wedding the groom was 85 and the bride 78. No doubt the friends of this youthful couple wished for them a "long and happy life of wedded bliss."

The East Texas Register notes the fact that John L. Sullivan is supporting Roosevelt for president, and asks where Jack Johnson is throwing his great weight.

HOCKING GIVES EVIDENCE

Supplies Government with Evidence Against Co-Defendants in Dynamite Case.

[By Associated Press.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 5.—Herbert S. Hocking, acting secretary of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, supplied the government with evidence against his fellow-defendants in the dynamiting case, according to a statement made by District Attorney Miller in court today. Attorney Miller said Ortle McManigal asserted Hocking was as bold as the McNamaras who blew up the Los Angeles Times building.

Attorney Miller's statement caused a sensation. The other defendants looked toward Hocking.

Attorney Miller said Hocking and James B. McNamara quarreled over the fixed price for dynamiting jobs, and McManigal threatened to expose the others. "If you do," said Hocking, "your life won't be worth much." They patched up the differences, but as soon as the government investigation of dynamiting began, Attorney Miller said, Hocking began to double cross the union by personally bringing evidence directly to the federal building here.

New Residence Being Erected.

The new residence of A. W. Wilkerson, which is being erected on East Lamar street, is progressing splendidly under Contractor C. E. Jenkins, who has the contract for building same. It is a two-story house and will be quite an addition to that part of the city when completed.

BLAZE AT BAPTIST ACADEMY

Serious Fire Narrowly Averted—Miss Crouch, a Teacher, Painfully Burned.

A fire alarm was turned in from the Bryan Baptist Academy shortly before noon today and the fire department responded promptly, but found that the flames had already been extinguished when they arrived. The janitor of the building, assisted by Prof. C. E. Bullock, did some quick work, thereby preventing what might have been a serious fire.

The fire was started when Miss Crouch, one of the teachers, stepped on a match which ignited and set fire to some gasoline she had in her hand, and which enveloped her in flames. Her cries brought quick help and the flames were soon extinguished. She was given immediate medical attention and her injuries are not believed to be serious. The damage to the building was only nominal.
